In a world that often overlooks the quiet, the ordinary, and the unqualified, God sees differently. When the prophet Samuel came to anoint Israel's next king, David wasn't even considered by his own father. Yet God said, "The Lord does not look at the things people look at... the Lord looks at the heart" (1 Samuel 16:7).

David's only experience was tending sheep in the wilderness, but God saw a king in him. David later wrote, "Though my father and mother forsake me, the Lord will receive me" (Psalm 27:10). What a comfort to know that when people forget you, God remembers you. His anointing will always find the one it was meant for.

Before elevation, there is often isolation. Joseph was thrown into a pit before reaching the palace. Moses wandered the desert before leading a nation. Even Jesus was "despised and rejected by men" (Isaiah 53:3). But rejection never cancels God's purpose—it often prepares us for it.

You may feel unqualified, but your worth is found in Christ. "God chose the foolish things of the world to shame the wise..." (1 Corinthians 1:27). We have nothing to boast of—except Jesus, who loved us, chose us, and gave us the right to be His children (John 1:12).

So take heart. These sorrows will pass. His love remains. "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning" (Psalm 30:5).

The Season of Renewal, Restoration, and Revival

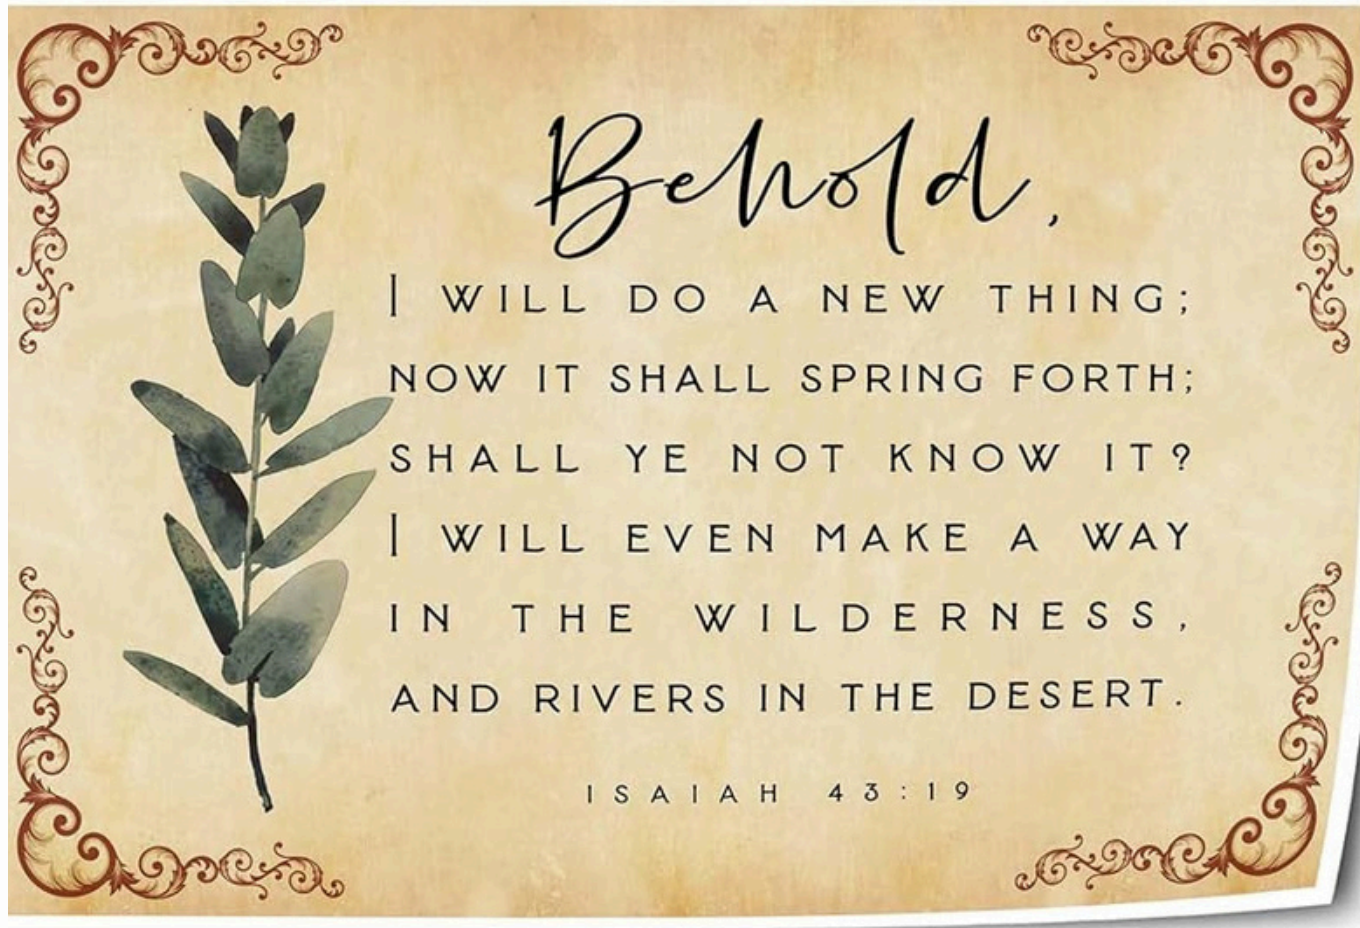

Living in the Rhythm of the Seasons!

We dwell within the sacred cycle of the four seasons, each whispering its truth. But of them all, Spring forever holds my heart.

There is something divine in the way new life bursts forth from the silence of the earth — a holy unveiling of beauty and promise. In Spring, there is a sacred refreshing, a gentle restoration that recalibrates our senses and our weary hearts.

The truth remains: the cold hush of winter and the profound barrenness of the soul can weigh too heavily upon us. There are moments when hope seems to drain from our very being, when the shadows stretch long and the silence feels eternal. In such times, it feels like all is lost, and nothing in our grasp can shift that stark reality... Until — new life breaks forth.

Spring arrives not with fanfare, but with whispers of resurrection. It is a divine reset, a turning of the page. The long shadows of winter melt away, and in their place comes the soft, warming breath of renewal. As blossoms awaken and sunlight lingers, we are reminded that Spring is the sacred season of becoming, when heaven gently invites us to begin again — to prepare our spirits for the journey ahead.

In its unfolding, Spring calls to something deep within us. It stirs our souls and revives our spiritual longing. It is in this sacred space that we are invited to:

*Receive hope into our hearts,
Allow new dreams to be kindled within,
Awaken to the divine breath that stirs our souls,
Behold what is holy and meaningful,
And reignite the fire of our deepest passions.
These are not just passing moments — they are holy invitations. Moments to embrace, to inhabit, to let shape us from within. And as we lean into them, something profound begins to take place:
Our spiritual expectancy awakens... and we behold all things being made new.*

So once more, a sacred invitation is before us — a holy mandate not of striving, but of surrender. One that calls us into the momentum of grace, into a life where renewal is not just possible but promised.

May the grace of the Lord breathe living hope into your soul.

May you have the courage to embrace this new season, and step into the holy rhythm of renewal that is ever unfolding around you... and within you.

Where art thou?

WRITTEN BY BRO LIJO

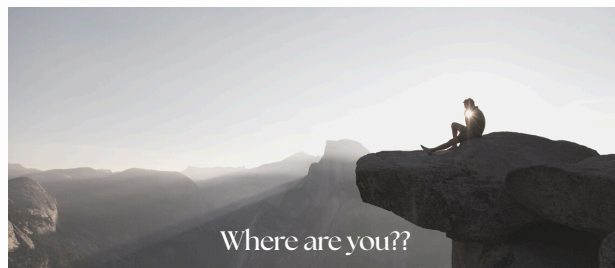

In Genesis 3:9, the first question God asked Adam and Eve was "Where art thou?" While in the Garden of Eden, they had disobeyed God's command, and upon realizing their nakedness, they attempted to hide from God's presence. They sewed fig leaves into aprons to cover themselves and hid among the trees when they heard God's voice in the cool of the evening.

When God asks a question in the Bible, it is not for His knowledge, but to prompt self-reflection and help people understand their relationship with Him.

Though a mighty man of God who brought drought and called down fire, Elijah also experienced fear and despair. Threatened, he hid under a juniper tree and asked God to end his life, until an angel found him and began his restoration.

Jonah, called to preach in Nineveh, ran from God by sailing to Tarshish. Content in his disobedience, he slept soundly below deck, unaware of the coming storm.

When we slide away from God's presence, we will end up much further away from God than we ever planned. We will pay a price much greater than we ever expected. We will end up losing more than we ever thought of.

"God wants to ask us today: 'Where art thou?'"

God wants to ask us today: "Where art thou?".

Where art thou, Jonah? Where art thou, Oh Elijah? Where art thou, Adam? Where art thou, Oh Eve? Have you been hiding on a ship, running away from the will of God? Have you been retreating under a tree, lost in your despair? Have you sought refuge among the bushes, concealing yourself from His sight? Questions cut through the silence, demanding our introspection. Are you listening?

As the psalmist says in Psalms 139: 7-9, where can we hide from the presence of God? If we ascend up to the heavens, He is still there. If we take wings and go to the uttermost parts of the sea, His presence is there. The writer of Hebrews (Hebrews 4:13) says all things are naked and opened unto the eyes of Him with whom we have to do.

Many believe we are living in the last days. Now is the time to leave our hiding, awaken spiritually, and draw closer to God. Romans 13:11 urges us to wake from sleep, as salvation is nearer than before. Wake, Walk, Witness—let these words guide you towards God's purpose. As the end draws near, let us seek God, be filled with His Spirit, and pursue our calling diligently, aiming for the eternal prize in Christ.

God Bless,
Lijo J

GUILT RIDDEN

WRITTEN BY PR. SUNIL AKKARATH

Dealing with Guilt?

A coffee spill on a white shirt is exasperating, yet some stains, like guilt, hide beneath the fabric of our hearts. Guilt is one of those invisible stains. It comes from our mistakes – things we regret, words we can't take back, actions we wish we could undo.

Guilt doesn't just fade with time. It stays with us, affecting our peace, confidence, and relationship with others and God. I still remember the harsh words I have spoken, moments that have lingered in my heart. These personal experiences have shown me how deeply guilt can root itself, refusing to let go without attention.

But here's the good news: God offers a way to be completely clean on the inside. That way is through Jesus Christ.

There was once a man named John, who found himself overwhelmed by debt due to unwise financial decisions. He felt the weight of his mistakes pressing down on him daily, knowing he could never repay what he owed. One day, out of pure kindness, a friend paid John's debt in full. John was taken aback by this act of grace, feeling a sense of relief and freedom that he hadn't known in a long time.

This story reflects the forgiveness and grace we receive through Jesus Christ. Jesus lived a sinless life. He died on the cross, taking our place, so that we could be forgiven. When we come to Him, honestly confessing our sins, He promises to forgive us completely.

What the Bible Says:

Hebrews 9:14: – The blood of Christ... will cleanse our consciences from acts that lead to death, so we may serve the living God.

Hebrews 10:22: – Let us come near to God with a sincere heart and a sure faith, with hearts made clean from a guilty conscience...

1 John 1:9: – If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

You don't have to carry guilt any longer. You don't have to try to clean yourself up. Jesus can do what no one else can: cleanse your heart and give you a fresh start. Turn to Him today. Consider speaking with a fellow believer to begin walking this journey together. Coming together as a community can strengthen your faith and support your path to growth, helping you maintain this newfound freedom.

Pr. Sunil Akkarath
Christian Counsellor

"Guilt can linger like an invisible stain, affecting our peace and relationships, but true cleansing comes through the grace and forgiveness found in Jesus Christ. When we confess our sins and turn to Him, He offers complete restoration, freeing us to live with renewed purpose and joy."

Our juniors have been joyfully expressing their faith through art or narratives and we're excited to showcase their creativity! Each drawing, painting, or a writing reflects their love for Jesus and the lessons they're learning in Sunday School. It's a beautiful reminder that God works through even the smallest hands. Take a moment to enjoy their artwork and be inspired by the pure, heartfelt expressions of our young believers.

POEM

WRITTEN BY BEN REJI

O, Nature, You're Wild, Weird, and Wise
O, Nature, you're wild, weird, and wise,
With oceans that sparkle and ever-changing skies.
You tickle the trees with the breath of your breeze,
And hum in the hive and the rustle of leaves.

You splash with dolphins, stomp with the bear,
Paint flowers in fields, scent rain in the air.
You cuddle the kittens, you roar with the storm,
You dress every creature with colour and form.

From mountains to mushrooms, from whales to the bees,
You're life's greatest artist, as grand as can be.
So here's to your magic, your chaos, your grace—
The heartbeat of Earth, our forever wild place.

This poem celebrates nature's vibrant spirit—its beauty, power, and artistry. From playful animals to majestic landscapes, it honors Earth's wild rhythms and creative force, reminding us of the magic woven into every breeze, storm, and bloom. Nature is chaos and grace, our eternal muse and home.

FAITH, FAMILY, AND A SECOND CHANCE: OUR MIRACLE IN INDIA

Testimon of Br Br. Nevin & Sis Jincy.

The moment the air seemed to still, panic set in. Gianna lay in her bed, her tiny body seized in a terrifying convulsion. I rushed to her side, my heart pounding as I called out her name. It was a scene that would forever be etched in my mind. We raced her to Believers Church Medical College, where time seemed to stretch as doctors fought to stabilize her condition. In those moments, our world felt on the brink of collapse.

Yet, amid this medical chaos, we clung to hope and faith. Days before this alarming episode, I was preparing for what I thought would be the pivotal moment of my life: reuniting with my family in Perth after being apart for four months. I had imagined that the difficult journey of finding a job, a house, and a car in a new city was behind me. But on the eve of departing for India to bring them to their new home, this unexpected crisis with Gianna made me realize the real test of faith and perseverance was beginning.

During those long, sleepless nights, I found comfort in a Bible verse: “If the foundations are destroyed, what can the righteous do?” (Psalm 11:3). Yet, I questioned God at times. Why was this happening to Gianna? Had we not been faithful? Each update from the doctors felt heavy and was always labeled as 'critical.' Amid the doubt, we found strength in the love, prayers, and support from friends, family, and our church. Their hope surrounded Gianna’s recovery.

One afternoon, worry filled the air as we sat outside the ICU. Seeing Jacob’s determination to pray inspired me to promise I would fast until Gianna came home. I called Jincy, my voice shaking, and together we prayed intensely, trusting the Holy Spirit to guide us. The support from our church community gave us hope and helped us stay strong.

That night, we learned Gianna had a high fever and needed an MRI the next day. Amid this stress, a supportive pastor and family prayed with us at the hospital.

Gianna’s sudden medical crisis shattered our plans and tested our faith. Amid fear and uncertainty, we leaned on prayer, Scripture, and the unwavering support of our church community. Through sleepless nights and critical updates, hope endured. Love, fasting, and spiritual unity became our anchor until healing began to unfold.

Amid medical uncertainty and prayerful perseverance, Gianna's recovery unfolded miraculously. From ICU struggles to a joyful cry for ice cream, God's presence and the message "Talitha Kumi" carried us through with hope, faith, and awe.

A significant turning point came after the MRI, when we heard the fantastic news that everything was normal. Overwhelmed with gratitude, I went up to the sixth floor, which was under construction, and found a quiet place to pray. There, we prayed together, and I felt the Holy Spirit encouraging me to pray in tongues. It was a decisive moment in our journey of faith.

After two long days, we finally saw a bit of hope. The constant hum of the ventilator and the antiseptic smell of the ICU were ever-present, but Gianna's condition had stabilized, and her fever had gone down. The doctors planned to take her off the ventilator, but when they did, she went into shock. They explained that her first intubation had damaged her trachea, so we had to consider a tracheostomy, which could have long-term effects.

Because of this, the doctors kindly decided to try taking out the tube again. In that uncertain moment, I felt the Holy Spirit say, "One day is enough for my God to work." This gave me new hope.

I left the doctor's room and joined our loved ones for prayer. It was heartwarming to know that our pastors and friends were surrounding us with love. Pastor Litty shared the message, "Talitha Kumi, little girl, arise." That evening, a prophet visited us and also received the message: "Talitha Kumi," reinforcing our belief that God would guide Gianna.

The next morning, doctors discussed the precaution of a tracheostomy. Feeling God's presence, I held Gianna's hand and prayed boldly, "Talitha Kumi, little girl Gianna, arise." With hope in my heart, I continued to lift my prayers.

About half an hour later, we were called back to the ICU, and the doctors met us with relief. "The wonderful news is that Gianna is breathing normally!" they said. We were so happy, but then we learned that Gianna didn't recognize anyone, not even us. She couldn't speak, and the gravity of the situation hit us when the doctor stated with a somber tone, "It might take a month for her to regain her speech and memory." In that moment, my heart sank, but we knew our journey was just beginning, so we continued to hope.

As we got ready to leave, I felt desperate and prayed again. Suddenly, I felt a quiet reminder to trust that the doctor's words weren't the final answer. That night, we received a call to return to the ICU. To our surprise, Gianna was sitting up and asking for chocolate ice cream! When she saw us, her face lit up, and she called out, "Mummy!" We were overjoyed and thanked God for this miracle, amazed that she improved in just hours instead of a month.

Gianna immediately recognized my wife, but she wasn't sure about me or my parents. She had gotten MRSA during the intubation. Even so, I kept praying, trusting that God would help us through.

The next morning, I visited Gianna and was relieved to see her calm, especially with Jincy. The nurse asked who I was, and Gianna's face lit up as she said, "This is Daddy!" She still didn't recognize my parents or ask about Rayanna, though. I talked to the doctor, who reassured me that the MRSA was being treated well.

The doctor said we could go home the next day, even though Gianna hadn't fully regained her memory. When we moved from the ICU to a regular room, she recognized our parents right away. She was so excited on the drive home, and I thanked God.

Even after we left the hospital, Gianna's legs were still weak and shaky. We went to CMC Vellore for a second opinion. When Jincy's mother saw children laughing on sports day, she cried, breaking my heart. Her tears mirrored every parent's fear—the longing for their child's well-being, the hope that their child would one day run with the same carefree joy. That night, I prayed with all my heart for Gianna to walk again, trusting in Jesus' name.

The next day was the turning point. Gianna started walking and soon ran and climbed the stairs joyfully. We went home, celebrating what God had done. We're so grateful for the prayers and support from our church and people worldwide. God is truly great and worthy of praise!

In reflecting on this journey, I've learned that in our darkest moments, when we choose to hold onto faith and love, we uncover a strength we never knew we had. Even when the path is uncertain, embrace hope and trust in the power of community and divine grace to guide you.
